Want sustain and tone that just keeps going....and going...and going, long enough to make Nige forget what he started? Look no further than the Paul Reed Smith Hollowbody II electric.

Carved inside and out with only a small block under the bridge connecting the back and top, the Hollowbody family offers brilliant acoustic qualities for a thinline hollow electric. The Hollowbody II, the most popular semi-hollow instrument offered by PRS, has solid mahogany rims with a solid, deeply-carved, figured maple top and back.

With the optional patented PRS/LR Baggs Piezo System, you can plug this instrument into your PA or recording console and your amp at the same time. This piezo-option instrument has a huge array of tones and simple switching possibilities.

Other features include: 25" scale-length mahogany, 22-fret neck with rosewood fretboard and moon inlays, neck carve-wide fat and, of course, the optional Abalone bird inlays.
